1. This memorandum is in response to your requirement referenced above.

2. An area of 25 nautical miles (nm) around Hsintu Hsien, China (30-50N/104-12E) was examined on good quality photography and no evidence of uranium mining or processing was discernible. However, in the northeast section of the search area a large industrial-type complex was observed 30 nm north northeast of Cheng-Tu on the west edge of Te-Yang (31-07N/104-23E). The complex consisted of several large monitor-roofed buildings, foundations and supports for a number of other sizable structures, tall stacks, sections of board fence with guard towers, open storage of construction material and housing. The complex is rail and road served. The best coverage of the complex was in [redacted] and at the time of photography, construction activity appeared to be at a standstill.
